

Buckhorn Lock 31

Nicole Weber, John Cooke, and Chris Huntley

nominated for the
James D. Strachan Award for Craftsmanship

for the stone masonry rehabilitation of Buckhorn Lock 31 (1887) on the Trent-Severn Waterway.

This award recognizes an outstanding artisan for exemplary work in conservation and restoration over a career or in a specific project. Emphasis is placed on the use of traditional construction techniques and the use of both traditional and innovative modern materials. The retention of original heritage material together with exact replication of missing elements is a key element of this award.
